BOCA RATON, FL – MAY 11, 2007 — This week cavalryHR, Chicago's premiere interim staffing and project professional recruiting firm, announced that it has opened a fourth office, in South Florida ...in Boca Raton to be precise. This new cavalryHR outpost will be "manned" by an exceptionally qualified group of outsourcing and recruitment consultants ready to offer their unique strategic human resource expertise to clients with service needs ranging from benefits outsourcing, project personnel management or back office support to an interim executive search.

The value and increasing scarcity of human capital is universally acknowledged but few companies have the resources to successfully implement talent recruitment strategies. The outsourcing and offshoring consultants at cavalryHR provide global workforce recruiting and management solutions that allow companies who depend on creative professionals to find and hire top-notch talent. They provide businesses in the market for an interim project manager or a market research consultant comprehensive staffing and recruiting services that can be tailored to include solutions from interim project recruiting to executive and management searches, strategic workforce planning, benefits consulting or even personnel development and outreach aimed at bolstering recruiting opportunities.

"Helping companies, large and small, starting up and well established locate, recruit and retain the creative professionals they need, is at the core of what we do at cavalryHR," said Catina C. Banks, cavalryHR's long time Director of Operations. "Whether those professionals are waiting for the call in Miami, Mumbai, Madrid or down there in Boca Raton ...we specialize in bringing workforce and employer together in an innovative way that HR professionals everywhere appreciate."

"Because of its location, within one of the fastest growing and most distinctly internationalized regions in the U.S. the new cavalryHR office is positioned to augment our strategic human resource operation in a truly global way," added Jack Williams, cavalryHR's Vice President of Client Relations. "Businesses are looking toward South Florida more and more for the creative professionals they need, and cavalryHR is set to benefit from its access to the Miami Dade recruitment market. We have a well-established reputation in the Palm Beach to Dade County area, so our new office will allow us to address our client's global staffing needs more effectively."

Williams went on to say ..."cavalryHR has been known for its superior interim staffing and project recruiting services throughout the Midwest for years. Now we'll have the opportunity to provide our clients throughout the south with easy access to South Florida's vibrant and growing talent pool."
