CHICAGO, IL – SEPTEMBER 17, 2007 — cavalryHR, the fast growth interim staffing and project personnel recruiting solutions consultancy headquartered in Chicago, Illinois announced today that it has unveiled a full slate of Manufacturing and Industrial Staffing & Recruiting Solutions. Their latest Staffing and Recruiting Solutions are aimed at supporting the Interim, Contract, Temp professional and Project-Based human resource needs of businesses operating in sectors ranging from light industrial services and industrial design to consumer product engineering and, of course, traditional manufacturing.

Fast on its way to becoming, the Windy-City's leading interim staffing and project-based recruiter, Chicago's cavalryHR has expanded its Industrial Staffing and Recruiting consulting team. Known for their cutting-edge interim personnel solutions, Cavalry HR recently taken on a fresh team of hr consultants with manufacturing industry backgrounds and the expertise to handle the unique professional staffing and recruiting challenges unique to the Manufacturing and Industrial sectors.

Regardless of whether your company is searching for engineers or production line staff, cavalryHR can deliver the talent via a unique network of local operatives and industry relationships. They specialize in finding the best candidates for interim, contract or temp needs to meet seasonal or project demands, cavalryHR assesses soft and technical skill sets to ensure a perfect fit. Cavalry already serves dozens of manufacturing clients, in industries from industrial supply to automotive, construction and consumer goods – offering professional talent for specific needs.

Keith S. Price, cavalryHR's President and Founder, explained that the firm's new Manufacturing and Industrial interim personnel solutions will be primarily focused on product design & production professionals and distribution-logistics-warehouse managers, both of which have traditionally been particularly difficult searches for recruiters in the industrial sector. Before deciding to carve out a niche with cavalryHR; Price built an outstanding strategic human resource management track record at prominent HR firms—including: PricewaterhouseCoopers, Mercer and Resources Global Professionals. Price has managed locally, both nationally and internationally oriented interim staffing and project personnel recruiting efforts for a number of Fortune 1,000 companies.

“Keith is unique,” said Catina Banks, Cavalry's VP of Operations who followed Price to cavalryHR from Chicago's Resources Global Professionals. “He truly enjoys the staffing and recruiting process. He has this compulsive curiosity. It drives his ability to look at a particular business or an entire industry's professional recruiting needs, break them down and see how they could work in a more effective way. What I'm trying to say is that Keith is a tinkerer – he has a natural, intellectual curiosity when it comes to issues related to strategic human resource management. He tends to take personnel issues apart to learn enough to understand and ultimately resolve them.”

“We're proud of our new Manufacturing and Industrial Staffing & Recruiting Solutions. Expanding into the manufacturing & industrial staffing industry will allow us to offer cavalryHR's unique interim staffing and project personnel recruiting and temp professional services to clients with personnel issues related to packaging & fulfillment or process design,” said Price. “We’re ready to help our clients design, plan and execute their workforce acquisition strategy including the delivery of consulting and training,” Price added. “Right now, cavalryHR now has hundreds of professional hr consultants dedicated to helping our new Manufacturing and Industrial clients target and recruit that rare brand of human capital success depends on – quickly and affordably.”

Cavalry HR currently maintains consulting offices in Chicago, Dallas, Boca Raton & Atlanta. More information about the Chicago-based interim solutions firm is readily available at: cavalryhr.com.
