CHICAGO, IL – SEPTEMBER 26, 2007 — The project-based recruiting, contract hiring, temp professional and interim personnel staffing services corporate decision makers and micro-business entrepreneurs alike need are a little closer at hand today than they were yesterday. Why? Because Chicago, IL's premiere professional services consultancy, cavalryHR has announced that Jennifer Cain will be joining their Technology-Based Industry targeted market development team. More than just a project-based recruiting solutions provider, cavalryHR offers Interim, Temp, Contract and Project Professional staffing and recruiting solutions aimed at helping business with high tech staffing needs fill positions suited to the talents of an interim candidate.

Ms. Cain is only the latest addition to cavalry HR's expanding Hi-Tech market development team.

Known for offering a variety of effective and innovative staffing and recruiting solutions and talented professionals ready to make a positive impact on an organization whether it's based in Chicago or Shanghai. Cavalry HR's slate of Hi-Tech staffing and recruiting solutions focus on providing interim software and hardware engineers, contract programmers developers, and quality assurance personnel, temp management and testers, contract technical writers and other highly-skilled personnel to businesses in the technology sector or firms with Hi-Tech personnel needs. Whether a company's specialty is pharmaceuticals, general life sciences, clinical research, bio-tech, telecommunications, wireless technology, or engineering (firmware, software).

What's more, Cavalry's strategic human resource management consultants can augment every client's mission-critical technical talent staffing process, enabling them to recruit and retain the technology professionals innovation depends on and use their human resource dollars more effectively. And, a uniquely qualified team of researchers, sourcers, and administrators supports each recruiter. That's right, Cavalry HR's project based, temp; contract and interim personnel services improve the staffing process for executives, human resource managers, and candidates.

"It's not one of those ideas you hear a lot about, but it's a fact that Interim personnel and contract professionals can be a cost-effective alternative to expensive hourly consultants," offered Keith S. Price cavalryHR's founder and president. "They give virtually any organization access to highly-skilled professionals for reasonable prices. They literally balance out the personnel playing field."

"We're thrilled to have Jennifer on board, Her base of technology sector experience will be a true asset and Her knowledge and enthusiasm is a more than perfect fit," Price went on to say.

"We provide talented, sought-after technical professionals with winning attitudes, desire and mission-critical skills suited to our client's specific personnel needs," offered Jack Williams, cavalry HR's VP of Client Relations. "We're ready for our client's Hi-Tech needs, we ask questions about their culture, we learn their organization – and we're better able to tackle the challenges they'll face when it comes to recruiting and retaining skilled technology professionals as a result. On top of which, we offer clients scalable project staffing solutions suited to their businesses and individual personnel needs."

“This will sound counterintuitive, but tailoring our approach is literally what gives us the dexterity to recruit successfully across a variety of tech industries and functional disciplines; from computer related software and hardware to life science specialties ranging from biochemistry and biology to chemistry and microbiology or even molecular cell biology to good old fashioned architects to engineering, [ChemE, EE, ME, IE, CS, CSE, SW E, CIS, PetE, PE; etc.] and IT personnel,” added Price.

Cavalry Human Resources currently maintains offices in Chicago, Dallas, Atlanta & Boca Raton. More information about the Chicago-based recruitment consultancy is available at: cavalryhr.com.
